Keriann Von Raesfeld Wins International Culinary Competition
Von Raesfeld Named “Best Young Cook in the World” at WACS Congress

Von Raesfeld, a member of American Culinary Federation (ACF) Santa Clara Valley Chapter, represented the Americas as she competed against 16 young cooks from other nations. Competitors created menus and served meals as they vied to win the Hans Bueschkens Memorial Trophy and title of “best young cook in the world.” Johannes Wagner of Germany placed second and Jorge Fernandez of Portugal placed third.

“It is not an easy task to travel across the world to compete against cooks who represent such varied cuisines. In this competition, Keriann proved she truly is the best young cook in the world. She is dedicated, talented and represented our country with unparalleled professionalism,” said John Kinsella, CMC, CCE, AAC, ACF national president.

Before the international competition, Von Raesfeld trained with her coach, Randy Torres, culinary-arts department chair at Professional Culinary Institute (PCI), Campbell, Calif., in Chicago and Salt Lake City to prepare for cooking in different locations. Contributing factors to her success included the extensive research she did on Dubai and its cuisine, and her practice with the ingredients she expected to encounter.

Von Raesfeld won the right to represent the United States at an ACF-sponsored invitational competition Jan. 14 in Chicago. A recent graduate of PCI’s culinary-arts program, she is a student in the school’s baking/pastry-arts program.

Dubai is not the end of the road when it comes to international competitions for Von Raesfeld; in fact, it is just the beginning. She will represent the United States in the Concours International Des Jeunes Commis Rôtisseurs, held in Paris, France, September 18-20, 2008.

The American Culinary Federation, Inc., established in 1929, is the premier professional organization for culinarians in North America.
